

Peter M. Yellowlees, MD

Professor of Psychiatry
Director of Academic Information Systems
UC Davis Health System

Dr. Yellowlees chairs the Graduate Group in Health Informatics and is responsible for the Health Informatics Program.

Dr. Yellowlees undertook his medical training in London and then worked in Australia for 18 years before moving to UC Davis three years ago to continue his research in telemedicine and eHealth. He has an international reputation in telemedicine and long distance health and education delivery and is much in demand as a speaker having given more than 100 presentations in 20 countries in the past five years. He has consulted with governments and private sector companies in several countries, and has published three books and more than 100 scientific articles.

Dr. Yellowlees has a number of research interests and is presently working on projects involving data mining and disease management protocols, Internet email and video consultation services, and the use of virtual reality and other online platforms for health education on the Internet.
